

Sports & Energy Drinks Market is estimated to be US$ 193.22 billion by 2030 with a CAGR of 7.6% during the forecast period

Sports & Energy Drinks Market accounted for US$ 93.3 billion in 2020 and is estimated to be US$ 193.22 billion by 2030 and is anticipated to register a CAGR of 7.6%. Energy drinks claim to boost energy, aid weight loss, increase endurance, and sharpen focus. Caffeine is the key ingredient in energy drinks. They may also contain guarana plant extract (which is related to caffeine), the amino acid taurine, sugar, and vitamins. Monster, Red Bull, and Rockstar are just a few examples of energy beverages. After physical exertion, sports drinks are used to replace water (rehydrate) and electrolytes lost through sweating. Electrolytes are minerals including potassium, calcium, sodium, and magnesium that help to maintain the body's fluid equilibrium. Sweating causes you to lose water and electrolytes. Sports drinks can help replenish carbohydrate used by the body during physical activity.

Key Highlights:

Analyst View:

The worldwide sports and energy drinks market is being driven by the growing popularity of sports and energy drinks among consumers. Female consumers are typically diet-conscious and choose calorie-free beverages, which is expected to drive market growth in the future. Young people are especially drawn to sports and energy drinks, and the market's growth is likely to be fueled by ongoing innovation in the flavour of these beverages. The use of natural components in sports and energy drinks is steadily increasing, which is boosting the target market growth. However, fraudulent promises made by a few vendors concerning sports drinks may limit the growth of the global sports and energy drinks market.
